STILL BEMOANING FATE.

The announcement of the transfer of the interests of the Oregon-Utah Sugar company to the larger Utah-Idaho company calls forth another wall from the Medford Mail-Tribune. Undoubtedly there might have been a fuller confidence between the public and the promoters of the sugar company, when there would have been less cause for a display of ill feeling later, but this does not justify the Medford paper in some of its statements. There was no time when the "required acreage had been pledged by the Medford area," and regardless of whether or not the factory had been guaranteed to Grants Pass by previous arrangement, the fact still remains that Grants Pass won the location through providing the greatest acreage that came within the specified provisions. The published list showed the greatest acreage guaranteed "without strings" in the Grants Pass area. At no time did the upper end of the valley offer legitimate contracts for beet acreage that aggregated as much as those turned in by the Grants Pass solicitors. Of course, the Medfordites told what they would do "if the factory should be located there." So did the Grants Passites, but a statement of that kind would not fill the bill.

If the people of the Medford district had produced honest contracts for acreage in excess of those produced by Grants Pass, they would have had some kind of a kick coming. But even if they were deluded into believing that they had a chance, they spoiled their appearance of chance by producing less legitimate acreage than did the Grants Pass portion of the valley. Bombastic claims of acreage that would be signed up "if the factory is located here" were not meeting the conditions.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEES FAIL TO AGREE ON PLAN

Coliseum, Chicago, June 9.—Senator Smoot, chairman of the "harmony committee," made the following report today of negotiations with the progressives:

"Your committee appointed, pursuant to the resolution adopted yesterday, met in conference with a committee representing the national progressive convention last evening. That the progressive committee of conference consisted of Messrs. Perkins of New York, Johnson of Cal., Bonaparte of Maryland, Wilkinson of New York, and Parker of Louisiana. "The conference was frank and free and most friendly. The conferees were in one mind for the good of the country. The progressive conferees were unanimous in urging, with temperateness and fairness, the opinion that Roosevelt of New York had so large a personal following and such a close personal relation to the issues of the coming campaign as to make him the most desirable candidate upon which to unite.

"It was agreed that your conferees would report these facts to this body." Smoot's reading that Roosevelt was a most desirable candidate on which to unite was greeted with a storm of cheers from the galleries.

Auditorium, Chicago, June 9.—The progressive peace committee made the following report:

"Your committee appointed pursuant to the resolution adopted at yesterday's session met in conference last evening. The committee of conferees representing the republican convention consisted of Messrs. Reed

Smoot, W. Murray Crane, Wm. E. Borah, Nicholas Murray Butler and A. R. Johnson.

"The conference was friendly. Immediately upon assembling your committee proposed as the joint nominee of both conventions, the name of Theodore Roosevelt. The republican committee did not present the name of any candidate, nor did it attempt to refute our arguments relating to the unique availability of Roosevelt as a candidate to unite both parties, or serve our common country at this crucial period in the history of the world.

"After several hours of friendly discussion during which no concrete proposition was advanced by the republican conferees, except that further conference might be wished this afternoon or evening, the joint committee adjourned."

PUBLISHER McLEAN
DIES AT WASHINGTON

Washington, June 9.—John R. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post and the Cincinnati Enquirer, died at his residence in the suburbs here this afternoon. He had been ill for weeks.

Besides his newspaper properties McLean, whose real and personal property ran into many millions, owned the controlling stock in the Western Gas Light company and was a heavy stockholder in street railway companies.

McLean was born in Cincinnati in 1848. His millions probably will go to his son, Edward Beale McLean, who married the only child of the late Thomas Walsh, Colorado mining magnate.
